Title: Devil Dolphins of Silver Lagoon receives 5 stars from Seattle Book Review

Date: 2017-02-16

Excerpt:

Whale tales captured in new expanded edition nonfiction book...

From the sailing whales of Patagonia to the neurotic attack dolphins of Brazil, Devil Dolphins of Silver Lagoon is a behind-the-scenes view of the making of many of Flip Nicklin's National Geographic magazine stories of the last few decades (and other assorted craziness).

"If you appreciate the beautiful photos of whales and dolphins that appear in your books and calendars, then you'll appreciate these behind-the-scenes tales of what went into the making of some of them," says author Michael Bennett.

"The stories are mesmerizing, and readers will enjoy the cultural commentary, the encounters with other peoples, and the sheer fun of exploring new terrains and discovering new things. But the dangers that come in the way make the stories even more exciting. Devil Dolphins of Silver Lagoon is a fun and enjoyable read." says Romauld Dzemo of the Seattle Book Review. The entire review is available HERE.

"This collection of stories had me laughing out loud more times than I can count; had me on the edge of my seat, and was just too fun to put down. I feel as though I was right there in Capt. Bennett's pocket, experiencing first-hand these riveting adventures," said Amazon reviewer, Eduvigas. The entire review is available HERE.

Michael Bennett, Small Planet Adventures owner, is at home cruising in the exotic places of the world. Over the past 20 years he has piloted boats for many National Geographic magazine and film expeditions. Prior to launching Small Planet, Michael was an Expedition Cruise Ship Captain, steering vessels through nearly every corner of the globe. He the
